Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE week between Christmas and New Year's a country publisher, if he knows what he's about, drops the luxury of an editorial column and goes to work. Winding up one year and starting another is always considered important. It's been the habit of business men to think so for thousands of years—and on this occasion there is added to powerful habit the fact that our nation has closed an eventful year both in business and politics. What do you honestly think of 1935, and how has it affected your attitude toward 1936?

Supreme Court Is Likely to Dictate Congress' Course

Uncertainty Will Prevail Until AAA, TVA and Guffey Decisions

IN SESSION FRIDAY

94 Senators and 432 Representatives Gathering in Washington

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Washington's perennial big show on Capitol Hill will open at noon, Friday, January 3, with mystery shrouding the prospective performance by a cast of 94 senators and 432 representatives.

The senate seats formerly occupied by Huey Long, the master showman, and Senator Schall, another "new deal" foe, will be vacant as will the seats of three representatives.

To a greater extent than any national legislature within the memory of observers here and perhaps in congressional history, the seventy-fourth congress will convene with widespread uncertainty as to what its major mission will prove to be.

Not until the verdicts of the U. S. supreme court on measures touching the economic interests of millions of American citizens have been handed down can a legislative "must" program be framed.

AAA Decision Due

Although President Roosevelt, who has promised a decreasing deficit, can raise for the congress a budgetary blueprint or suggest revisions in existing laws here and there, the legislative schedule to deal with the embattled AAA and other prime elements of the "new deal" must await the action of the high court.

The momentous decision on the validity of AAA, involving processing taxes which provide hundreds of millions of dollars to finance crop control, may be returned soon after the court reconvenes on January 6 following its abbreviated Christmas recess. Should the court find AAA unconstitutional, congress would be plunged immediately into a struggle to evolve a new farm relief program.

Decisions affecting the validity of the public utility, the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Guffey coal control measures also are expected this winter. The social security law and the Wagner labor disputes act possibly may be passed upon by the court before congress adjourns. Should any of these be declared invalid, efforts may be made to re-enact them in constitutional form.

Bonus Action Seen

Early action is expected in congress on the soldiers bonus, affecting millions of World war veterans and their families directly as cash beneficiaries and millions of federal government taxpayers indirectly. Advocates of immediate payment of the bonus express confidence in victory at this session even if the president vetoes the bill.

Fireworks are in prospect along with the bill.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

I ask that question because there are certain general policies of the national administration that this newspaper has been silent on—and silence, with a newspaper, is commonly considered to mean agreement.

But the fact is, most of us find fault with the administration not on principle but on the methods by which those principles are put in force.

Here lately, it is true, there are evidences of a revolt against the administration on principle also. But I disagree with these critics.

And just as I was about to write a New Year's summary of national events I found one already written to my liking. It is crisp, truthful, non-partisan.

You who imagine at times that the present administration is departing suddenly and violently from ancient American precepts would do well to read this article. It is by William Feather, editor of the Imperial Type Metal magazine, a non-partisan trade journal, which, for all its postage stamp size, is one of the best in America.

X X X

Mr. Feather writes: "At the time when this depression became serious there was no group that was willing to go the whole way to the 'right.' If deflation had been allowed to take its natural course, a dozen big railroads would probably have gone into receivership, hundreds of additional banks would have failed, and many insurance companies would be in trouble."

"The right—which means old-fashioned economics, does not permit of official moratorium on contracts and solemn obligations. The government keeps its hands off everything. The life survive and the unit go down."

"Now that the government, by advancing billions of dollars of cash and credit to support lame situations, has prevented the chaos that appeared to threaten everyone, the 'right' side is becoming increasingly articulate and is saying that none of the government-aid measures were necessary."

"By instinct and reason I lean to the 'right.' I wish that the government would attend to government and let business attend to business. But the day when that was possible seems to have gone forever. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, conceived and organized by a conservative administration, ended all hope that natural law was to be allowed to prevail. The RFC made inevitable the creation of dozens of other government-aid organizations."

"Now we are told that we must make a choice between permanent government-aid, which is parasitic, and self-help, which is individual freedom."

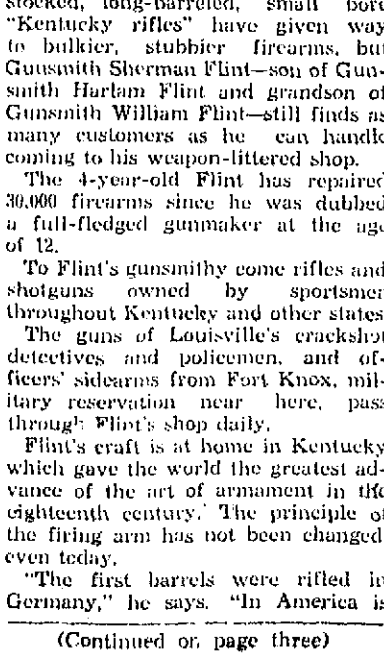

"I prefer self-help as a way of living and doing business, but unless the full implications of the self-help doctrine are accepted, I do not see how we can return to that system. For example, self-help and a protective tariff are at opposite ends of the pole. Those who advocate the 'right' must be consistent. They can't have their cake and eat it."

Fireworks are in prospect along with the bill.

Free Textbooks a Possibility, Says State Comptroller

Griffin Smith Sees Authority Under Article of Constitution

"FREE EDUCATION"

Assumes That Would Cover Textbooks as Well as Instruction

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—State Comptroller Griffin Smith said Tuesday he believed the distribution of free textbooks to school children is provided for under the Arkansas constitution.

The comptroller said in a letter to Walter Sorrells, Jr., editor of the Pine Bluff Commercial, that textbooks apparently should be provided for under Section One of Article 14 of the constitution, which assures "gratuitous instruction" for all persons between the ages of 6 and 21.

Compromise Bonus Bill Is Foreseen

President Parries Questions, However, at Press Conference

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A house conference between Speaker Byrns and Representative Patman, house bonus bloc leader, ended Tuesday with no new suggestions for a compromise on the fishy cash bonus issue.

Patman told reporters he had nothing to say.

Compromise Rumor

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sentiment for concessions intended to melt some of the administration's opposition to immediate payment of the bonus strengthened Monday with "compromise" talk from a key man in the perennial battle.

Author of a bill that would pay the bonus through the inflationary method of issuing $2,000,000,000 in new currency. Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, returned to the capital to announce that he would "consider a compromise on the method of payment." That has been one of the bitterly contested points in the annual congressional bonus struggle.

Talk of a possible compromise that might escape a presidential veto was heightened when President Roosevelt parried all questions about the bonus at his late afternoon press conference. He left room for an implication that the administration's mind was not closed on the question.

Asked if he had changed his attitude toward the Patman bill since he vetoed it last spring, Mr. Roosevelt turned the query aside by asking if there was such a bill.

When assured there was, the president suggested the best policy would be to wait and see what kind of bonus legislation is put forward.

The Patman bill, which Mr. Roosevelt vetoed, is due to be taken up in the house on January 13, because of a petition signed by a majority of the members at the close of the last president's veto last spring, and only by a narrow margin was he upheld in the senate.

Sun Spots Argue Bad Luck in '36

Close Connection Between Sun and Human Health and Crops

OTTAWA, Can.—(AP)—Crops should be smaller, people more irritable and radio reception worse in 1936 than in 1935, if scientists of the Dominion observatory have plotted correctly the number of spots due to mark the surface of the sun next year.

The number of sun spots will increase in 1936, the observatory scientists predict. They have become convinced after years of study that the spots have an important influence on every form of life on earth. They predict the western wheat farmers will have smaller crops because of the increased rain, also fewer grasshoppers.

Scientists also assert that if the sun spots are great in number, the health of man and animals falls off. The years 1917 and 1918, when sun spots were the most numerous since the turn of the century were marked by worldwide influenza plagues.

TRENTON, N. J.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's counsel said Tuesday that the convicted murderer of the Lindbergh baby is "very much encouraged" over the progress of his fight to escape death in the electric chair.

Frederick A. Pope, who brought word from Hauptmann's cell in the death-house of the New Jersey state prison, declined to add any explanation.

Little Rock Buys Its Water Plant

New Municipal Venture at Capital—Purchase Price Is $3,850,000

LITTLE ROCK.—The city of Little Rock Monday night bought the water distribution system of the Arkansas Water company for $3,850,000.

A resolution offering that sum for the property was adopted by the City Council after an executive session. The company representatives previously had demanded $3,900,000 but eventually accepted the amount offered.

Television Likely to Appear in 1936

RCA to Make Field Test of Its Costly Laboratory Development

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK—(AP)—Looking backward and forward, there are many indications that 1936 was the year B. T.—before television.

It was during 1935 that RCA laboratories announced "comprehensive field tests of high definition television" would be attempted in 1936. The announcement, however, carried no indication of participation. It was believed the tests would cost more than $1,000,000.

Also, there was the advice from the Bell laboratories that they had developed a cable-coaxial it is capable of carrying television signals by wire to make possible network interconnection.

The RCA tests are to be predicated upon the research work in which Dr. Vladimir Zworski and his colleagues have been the center. These devices eliminate mechanical in television transmission and reception.

Lessons in Law-Making

By the Associated Press

3. Legislative Hurdles

After a bill has been introduced—say in the house of representatives—it begins a journey beset by some two or more possible hurdles any one of which may prevent it becoming law.

First the bill is referred by the Speaker to a standing or select committee where it is given a number and ordered to be printed. Then the committee may report the bill out for a place on the house calendar.

The house as a "committee of the whole" debates the bill, has it read a second time, then engrosses it, reads it a third time and votes on its passage.

It then is transmitted to the senate by message where it is referred by the Vice President to the proper committee. The senate committee reports it out, the senators debate it and return it to the house either with or without amendments.

The house again considers the bill with the senate amendments, if any, and sends it to conference for a settlement of differences between the two houses.

If the conferees agree and the two houses concur in their agreement the bill is enrolled on parchment, examined by the committee on enrolled bills, and signed by the Speaker and Vice President.

It is sent then to the White House for either the President's approval or veto. If vetoed a two-thirds vote of each house is necessary for ultimate passage.

When approved by the President the bill is deposited with the secretary of state. When the two houses have passed a bill notwithstanding the President's objections, the presiding officer of the house which acts on it last transmits it to the secretary of state.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Med-

the Health Magazine

Agree with her or not, you will find that her book makes a deep impression. Harpers is publishing it at $3.50.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children love the dramatic. The Land-of-Let's-Fretland is a perfect Utopia for them, and as far as that goes for all the rest of us too.

The week between Christmas and New Year's Day, after the excitement of new toys wears off, can be filled with good times if mother lays out a few odds and ends of clothes to dress up in.

These must have as little resemblance to everyday clothes as possible. Otherwise children are not particular about their trappings. An old fedora with a certain cord and tassels be- comes a cavalier's cape; add sis- ter's rain cape and you have a whole cavalier. It's as easy as that.

Possibly mother will have to sug- gest an idea as well as furnish a sheet and some pins. And move a bed, or clear out the dining room. Otherwise she won't have to spend much time on the drama itself, for here ingenu- ity begins and her responsibility ends.

Because children like to invent, and they like to do their own dressing. Otherwise it is not their show, but hers.

Fall Back on "Mother Goose"

If she cannot think of any small story for them to act, she can always rely on "Mother Goose." This presents still further possibility for pantomime.

Here an audience is necessary to guess the answers. So, if the house is big enough to hold half a dozen extra, put out the bootscaper, set the bird cage and the best lamp on the mantle and have the mimers do the rest.

One can be Little Jack Horner, sit- ting in his corner and eating a tender piece of cardboard on a plate. Another, Dumpty, Mary-Mary, King Cole, Jack-Be-Nimble and the other char- acters that every well-read child should know. The point is that if it is only a newspaper or a curtain, the clothes must not be "regular" clothes, their own, that is—ones, that go with meals and running errands and school.

Older children are of times able to make up their own story they know, if they can be taught words to act and parts to act, then that is getting into real dramatic work. But this takes more time than a mother usually can spare and may well be left to its own field—the time, the place and the teacher, or director. Here I am suggesting a way to play at home on empty days.

It is wise for the mother of a grow- ing family not to throw out any new gaw or ornament that can be used for "dress up." A box of such treas- ures may live many a dull Saturday.

Also the old lace or satin or lame that seems to be fit only for the ragman. Movies have given children a pretty good idea of how various characters dress. So, save dad's suspenders for the sheriff and cracked ping-pong balls for the queen's pearls. Sorry about the barrels hoops for Bo's skirt. But there aren't any barrels any more.

Today's Health Question

Q.—What makes the skin around the nails peel continually? Is this the condition known as salt rheum?

A.—It is impossible to say what makes the skin around the nails peel continually in any particular case. Perhaps the most common cause would be eczema, for which the term salt rheum is often used.

The fluid will then be retain- ed in the body to a greater extent and the symptoms are not likely to appear.

Doctors commonly recommend the drinking of large amounts of water when people are sick, particularly with fevers. This is done because fever increases greatly the rate of surface ex- cretion of water from the body surface, and water the fluid that is lost.

The following foods contain more than 70 per cent water: beef juice, berries, buttermilk, calf's foot jelly, cream, eggs, fruit juices, fresh fruits, gruels, leafy vegetables, milk, shell- fish, string beans, tomatoes, veal, and vegetable juices.

These foods contain less than 30 per cent of water, as they are usually eaten: butter, cakes, candy, cereals, cornmeal, crackers and biscuits, dried fruits, pretzels, farmers' sausage, smoked bacon, suit, sirups, and zwie- back.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Katherine Mayo does not seem to like the people of India any better than she did when she wrote "Mother India." At any rate, she is out with a new book, "The Face of Mother India," in which she offers visual proof of her charge that Hindus are an un- clean, incompetent, and eternally con- tentious people.

This book is composed very largely of photographs, which are well worth looking at, whether or not you share Miss Mayo's views about all its aspects.

They show India in all its aspects; the magnificent mountains of the north, the fertile plains of the middle, the modern colleges and other institutions established by the British, workers, farmers, students, priests, temples and palaces and stock exchanges—a re- markable collection of views showing all aspects of Indian life.

Miss Mayo knows how a propa- gandist should use pictures, too. Her se- lection includes scenes that are apt to persuade you that she is pretty near- ly right in her verdict on the noble Hindu: scenes of filth and the queues that the natives of the Ganges will try the stomachs of the queerest.

Included in the Indian history by Miss Mayo, I will leave the question of this book's authenticity to others, reporting only that it makes interest- ing reading and that the author's bias is at least perfectly open and sincere.

With All My Love

by Mary Raymond
Copyright NEA 1933

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Against the wishes of her grandmother, aristocratic Mrs. WILLIAM CAMERON, DANA WESTBROOK married the SCOTTS.

Before her marriage, RONALD MOORE had been in love with her. NANCY, Dana's half-sister, loved him, but Dana's father, Mr. CAMERON, had married her mother, Mrs. CAMERON, and she was now Dana's stepmother.

Now Dana becomes aware of Paula's infatuation for her husband. Our story begins here.

It was Nancy who broke the news to Dana. "Well, Scott's done it," she said. "Landed right at the top—high, wide and handsome."

Dana's hand went to her heart. Why didn't Nancy go on? Why was she standing there, smiling so queerly?

"Scott's been taken into part- nership by Dr. Osborne," Nancy continued. "He'll be doctoring all the richest patients in town. Now I guess you'll write that note and say you're sorry!"

Dana did not answer for a mo- ment. So Nancy believed that was why she had left Scott and that now she would beg him to take her back.

"When has all this happened?" Dana asked.

"Just today. It's just been an- nounced. They say Dr. Osborne has had his eyes on Scott for a long while and Scott clinched matters when he performed an operation Dr. Osborne said few surgeons could have done so well."

"Tell me about it," Dana asked.

"There's not much to tell. Dr. Osborne sprained his arm and he couldn't operate, so he turned the job over to Scott."

Dr. Osborne watched him and he seemed to be a sort of wizard in the operating room. That's all there is to the story, I guess."

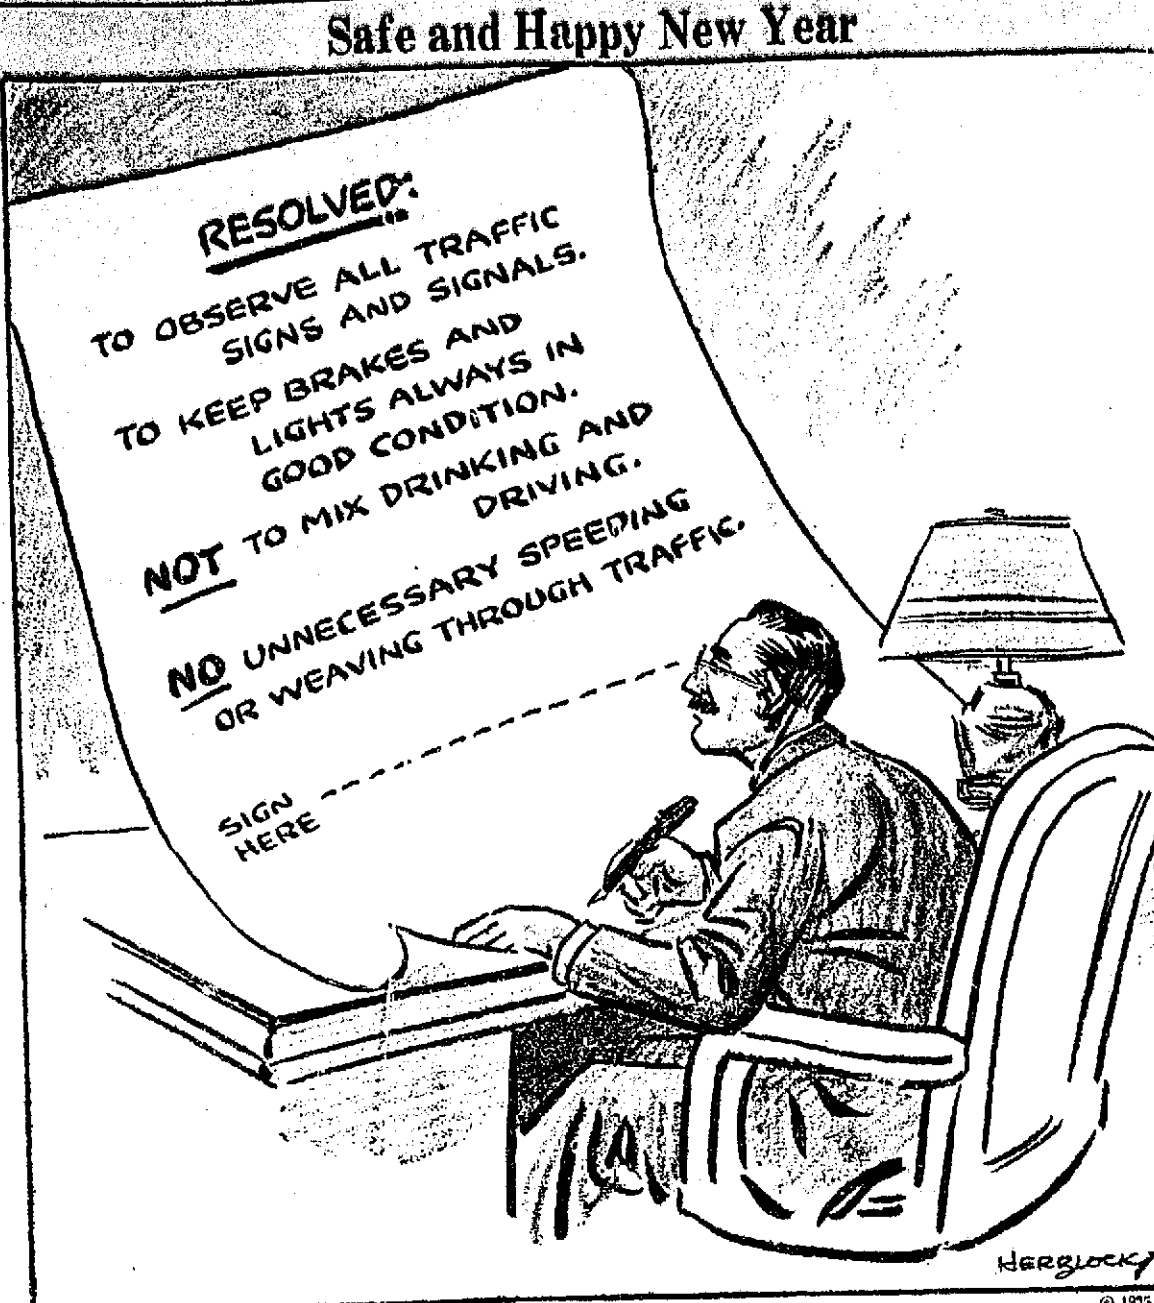

Nancy stopped. She was sud- denly sorry for Dana who looked rightfully cut up, as though she might faint. It must be pretty bad, at that, to realize you had given up an attractive husband because he didn't have any money, and then have him dip into the professional pile and draw out a plum as big as this.

Nancy was sorry for Dana, but she was glad for Scott. He de- served something extra nice after the way he had been treated.

"Aren't you glad, Dana?" Nancy asked curiously.

"Why, of course," Dana's low gaze met her half sister's. How could Nancy doubt that she was glad for Scott?

DANA sat down and stared, un- seeing, at the magazine she

Wall Street Men Advance in 1935

Odium Looms Large as Boss of Investments, Movies, Aviation

By RADER WINGET Associated Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wall Street's men and machines labored mightily through the third year of recovery and the financial nerve center of American commerce made 1935 news.

Among those whose deeds will be written large in "the Street's" history of 1935 were many old-timers on the "come-back" trail and more than a few newcomers.

Joseph Patrick Kennedy during the year retired as Wall Street's police- man, turning the chairmanship of the securities and exchange commission over to James McCauley Landis.

Kennedy, impose discipline by rais- ing nine children (whom he laugh- ingly calls "the nine starving Ken- nedy's") learned about Wall Street by working in Wall Street, and his old friends were high in their praise of his administrative ability in guiding the most important "new deal" agency in the financial field.

Landis, a Harvard man, stems from a professorship in his alma mater's law school.

Harold Stanley, long a securities ex- pert, entered the underwriting field with auspicious backing as president of Morgan Stanley & Company, com- posed for the most part of former partners in J. P. Morgan & Company.

Once president of the Guaranty com- pany, securities affiliate of the Guar- anty Trust company, Stanley spezialized in utilities with Morgan's, and in his new company he participated in or- led many outstanding 1935 corporate financing operations.

Big Steel Merger

Tom Mercer Girdler, a hardhitting steelman, won a battle against long odds in merging Republic Steel, Cori- gan, McKinnon Steel and Trucon Steel in the face of anti-trust im- pediments, and he guided Republic in- to a net profit of $3,264,295 in the first nine months of 1935 compared with a net deficit of $2,193,157 in the same period of 1934.

Floyd Bostwick Odium, head of At- las corporation, was established as one of depression's smartest traders. He bought low, swapped wisely, and sold high until Atlas by 1935 had amassed assets of more than $100,444,- 000, total investment company of Amer- ica.

John Daniel Hertz, a partner in the private banking firm of Lehman Brothers, is Odium's good friend, and this ex-police reporter of Chicago in the second year of his second retire- ment tested his hand at trading.

Together, Atlas and Lehman, with others, interests, reorganized Para- mount Pictures, Inc.; secured con- trol of Transcontinental & Western Air (Lindbergh line); obtained con- trol and directed the management of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, a movie com- pany formerly controlled by Radio Corporation.

The Van Sweringens

Oris Paxton and Mollie James Van Sweringens redeemed their 23,000-mile railroad system and vast real estate holdings when they paid $3,121,000 at the crack of an auctioneer's hammer and bought back collateral securing some $50,000,000 in past due loans and interest extended by Wall Street bankers headed by J. P. Morgan & Company.

The stake of the Cleveland bachelors added up to about $3,000,000,000 in balance sheet value with Allegheny corporation as the top holding com- pany. The brothers' come-back was through a new holding company, Mid- America Corporation, formed by friendly interests to do the bidding and facilitate the revitalization of their properties and fortune.

Oris Paxton and Brother Mantis James died in December.

James McKinnon broke into retailing from an odd source. A professor and business management counsel, Mc- Kinsey was named chairman of Mar- shall Field & Company, Chicago, his first job with a corporation.

Charles R. Gray, senior partner in the oldest New York stock exchange firm, was elected president of the ex- change after what promised to be the hottest election fight in Wall Street history had died out.

Richard Whitney, who fought de- pression and stock market crises for five long years, was backed by friends "run on his record." Whitney de- clined, sought peace in the financial family, and left Gay unopposed for the presidency while he polled more votes for a place on the board of gov- ernors.

Martin Withington Clement inher- ited William Wallace Atterbury's Pennsylvania Railroad system when the aging chief retired. A former vol- unteer, Clement at 53 years of age is one of the youngest presidents in the road's history.

Charles Edwin Mitchell, within two years after he resigned as head of National City bank and was acquitted on a charge of income tax evasion, re- turned to Wall Street. He was elected chairman of Blyth & Company, an in- vestment house founded on the Pa- cific coast in 1914, and participated in important copper and coast utility underwriting.

The network believed they would close 1935 with a total intake of $50,- 000,000, their best yet by several mil- lions.

or congressional lines. Investigation of munition makers' activities, with J. P. Morgan featured as the chief witness before a senate committee and inquiries into alleged lobbying enter- prises by so-called "big business" groups are slated for resumption.

Among the latter may be the Amer- ican Liberty League and some busi- ness organizations which may be ac- cused by "new deal" congressmen of going beyond their normal scope in interest in political activities hostile to the Roosevelt administration.

An important job will be the draft- ing of a neutrality act to take the place of the emergency measure which was enacted last summer and expires on February 26. More or less related to the peace problem will be national defense measures with the prospect of a drive in congress for money to ob- tain 800 new fighting planes for the army.

Townsendites May Act

Further provisions to care for those on relief, coupled with pressure from various sources to reduce govern- mental indebtedness now past the $30,- 000,000,000 mark, are considered certain to precipitate stormy debate. Backers of the Townsend pension plan are ex- pected to go into action in the clock- rooms if not on the floor of the house.

Labor has been preparing to renew its drive for the 30-hour week and to defend legislative gains as represent- ed by the Wagner labor disputes bill and the Guffey coal regulation mea- sure. In the background also is the American Federation of Labor's pro- posed amendment to the constitution empowering congress to enact legis- lation protecting the workers as was provided by NRA.

For New Year's

Friend o'mine, in the year coming
I wish you a little time for play,
And an hour to dream in the eerie gloomings
After the clamorous day.
(And the moon like a pearl from an Indian shore
To hang for a lantern above your door.)

A little house with friendly rafters,
And some one in it to need you there,
Wind of romance and wholesome
laughter
With a comrade or two to share.
(And some secret spot of your very own
Whenever you want to cry alone.)

I wish you a garden on fire with roses,
Columbines planted for your delight,
Scent of mint in its shadowy closes,
Clean, gay winds at night.
(Some nights for sleeping and some
to ride
With the broomstick witches far and wide.)

A goodly crop of figs to gather,
With a thistle or two to prick and sting;
Since a harvesting too harmless is rather
An unadventurous thing.
(And now and then, spite of reason or rule,
The chance to be a bit of a fool.)

I wish you a thirst that can never be sated
For all the loveliness earth can yield,
Slim, cool birches whitely mated,
Dawn on an April field.
(And never too big a bill to pay
When the Fiddler finds he must up and away.)—Selected.

Saenger Preview 11 Tuesday Night

"The Dark Angel" Features March, Oberon and Marshall

"The Dark Angel," gripping romantic drama, starring Fredric March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall, will be the feature attraction at the Saenger's 11 p. m. New Year's Eve preview Tuesday night.

This powerful and beautiful love story, set in a lovely, quiet corner of rural England, reflects the hearts of a woman and two men—one of whom she loves, while the other loves her.

A great emotional climax is reached when the man she loves comes to a realization of his love for her. Their happiness is short-lived, however, as the relentless forces of life tear them apart. Years after, when the girl has resigned herself to a betrothal to the other man, a kindlier fate intervenes and the lovers are reunited.

The Marx Brothers, in "A Night at the Opera," closes its all too short three-day run in what is claimed by many as the funniest comedy this family of comedians has ever done.

Hamilton Shares' Dividends Pick Up

Erringer Reports on Condition of Trust's Underlying Stocks

A preliminary study of dividend prospects for January, 31, 1936, discloses facts of interest to everyone connected with Hamilton Depositors corporation, Orville W. Erringer, state agent, announced here Tuesday.

Mr. Erringer's statement, taken from a news bulletin sent out by Hamilton Depositors corporation, follows:

"In comparison with the dividends paid by the various corporations underlying the Hamilton Trust Fund as of October 31st distribution, we find Detroit Edison will pay $1.00 extra; the duPont's extra over the amount paid over the previous quarter will be approximately 65 cents; that General Electric's rate has been raised 5 cents per share; that Union Carbide's rate has been raised 10 cents per share; that International Harvester will increase its rate 15 cents per share; that Standard Oil of New Jersey, which pays semi-annually, and therefore made no payment in the last quarter, will make a 75 cent payment in this quarter; that Sears Roebuck which made no payment in the last quarter, will pay $1.00 in this quarter; and that Ingersoll-Rand will pay $3.00 extra during the present quarter.

"It is now estimated that the quarterly distribution to be made January 31st next, will be approximately 1.8 per share. This is the highest rate ever paid on Hamilton Trust Shares. This estimate is based upon the corporation dividends now in sight and the probability of practically the same liquidating value on January 25th, as at present.

Breeches Buoy Rescues Flood Trap Victims

Rescues after the manner of shipwrecks at sea gave a spectacular touch to the freak flood which took toll of more than a million dollars and at least five lives in Houston, Tex., when Buffalo bayou surged over low-lying sections of the downtown area. Here, in the circle, is shown a stranded store-keeper riding a breeches buoy to safety, while several other marooned residents wait their turn for a lift. Note the height to which the water had risen in the street. Several large buildings were undermined by the flood waters, and one collapsed.

Borah's Campaign Alarms the G. O. P.

Early Drive for Delegates Points to Deadlock in Convention

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington.

Senator Borah's latest and most convincing gesture toward the Republican presidential nomination leaves Republican plans in a state of much disturbance on the threshold of the fateful year of '36.

To many of the old-line Republican leaders, who at this stage control the party organization, Borah's willingness to run appears to have come as a great surprise.

For weeks they had closed their minds to such a possibility. In spite of repeated warning indications to the contrary, they had clung trustfully to their original assumption that the man from Idaho was "just talking again," and never would do what he was threatening to do.

The realization that he is in earnest has dawned at a most interesting moment. The movement for a conservative, "sound business" ticket and platform, with industry and finance lined up in an imposing phalanx for Republican victory, had attained almost bandwagon proportions.

Republican hope of winning the election on that basis had risen higher than at any time since the defeat of '32. Now all calculations are undergoing revision.

Three Salient Facts
To understand the situation of the old-line leaders, who aspire to continue throughout 1936 and thereafter their present domination of the party organization, it is necessary to take account of only three salient facts:

1. Borah's pulling power among the rank and file is unquestioned. No one disputes that he can go into the convention with a large bloc of delegates, perhaps with far more delegates than any other candidate.
2. Borah's ideas about monetary "reflation," and his views on various other subjects, are entirely out of joint with those of the old-line leaders and violently out of harmony with the kind of campaign these leaders have been organizing.
3. Borah personally, on the basis of his record of independence within the party, has been and continues to be a thorn in the flesh of those who nominally control the party. They know what would happen to them if Borah gained control.

The sum total of these facts is that

Muddy Field for New Year's Game

Stanford Heavier, But S. M. U. Can Throw Passes Even in Rain

PASADENA, Calif. —(P)—Southern Methodist and Stanford football players faced a prospect of muddy field for their game at the Rose Bowl New Year's day.

There was considerable conjecture as to how a slow field would affect the two teams, and even more consternation among ticket scalpers who had hoped to clean up.

Opinion prevailed that Stanford, with its ponderous line and a team 11 pounds to the man heavier than the Mustangs, would gain the advantage in case of rain—since Coach Matty Bell's team depends on passes and fast breaking running plays.

On the other hand, the invading

Followers of the Western representatives were cheered with the news that Bobby Grayson, All-American fullback, despite a slight cold which kept him confined to the hotel Sunday, would be ready to play.

Almost all trace of his ailment had vanished when he worked out with the squad at Brookside park Monday afternoon. Coach Claude (Tiny) Thornhill gave the Indians their last serious workout.

James (Monk) Moscrip, end, whose condition has been a question since the team's arrival, showed better form and it seemed certain he would start the game with his injured left knee in a brace.

In a sudden switch of plans, the Mustangs arose early Monday and took a secret morning workout at Occidental College. It was said Coach Bell drilled them for two hours, with an hour and half of dummy scrimmage.

An old theory exploded by development of the parade, which stated that a fullback produced (unofficially).
